

Villa Angela, near Opatalj, Istria

Sleeps 12 | 6 Bedrooms | 6 Bathrooms plus 2 (in basement & wellness area)

Description

Villa Angela is situated in Opatalj, a picturesque little town in the north western part of Istria. It is perfectly positioned on the crest of a hill with absolutely spectacular views of the countryside! Opatalj is known back from the 12th century as the residence of the feudal lords and you can see the medieval influences in its small squares and streets! Villa Angela was built at the end of 19. century, as a lords residence. After a long period of turbulence and governance changes, for some time it was used as guest house for the lords traveling from Trieste or Rijeka but it was finally renovated in 2006 to its present standard.

This area is well known for its nearby top class vineyards and also truffles which are well worth a taste! There is so much history to be discovered in this area and you don't have to move far to enjoy a holiday in this area, but you are also excellently placed to explore if that takes your fancy! The pretty, Venetian style sea edge town of Novigrad is beautiful and well worth a visit – it lies on the western coast of the peninsula. Villa Angela lies almost in the middle of the Istrian Peninsula and on the opposite side, the elegant coastal town of Opatija has a completely different, more cosmopolitan Austro-Hungarian style. You're never far from a variety of stunning countryside, great wine and food, and picturesque coast line – this villa has it all!
